10. 05 - 10. 06 Digital Building Lab Symposium

As buildings and cities fuse with ubiquitous computing systems and become part of the emerging "Internet of Things," new players from both inside and outside traditional architecture, engineering, and construction (AEC) sectors with new business models are beginning to capitalize on the opportunities in this changing landscape of professional practice and technological innovation. The seventh annual Digital Building Lab Symposium will include a two-day discussion, with leaders from a set of traditional and non-traditional disciplines to address these critical topics.

Organized by Dennis Shelden, Director of the Digital Building Lab, Georgia Tech
